

The CTCIS Now in the ACLS's Humanities E-Book Project

by John Monfasani,
Executive Director

One of the great scholarly projects of our time is the Catalogus Translationum et Commentariorum: Mediaeval and Renaissance Latin Translations and Commentaries, the first volume of which appeared in 1960. So it was with considerable joy that I received the notice below. The great advantage of online access is, of course, the ability to consult something whenever and wherever we want. Indeed, since the online version will be searchable, the CTC has become even more valuable. RSA members can purchase a discount subscription to Humanities E-Book through the RSA website (www.rsa.org). Just click the link "ACLS Humanities E-Book Subscription" in the right hand column of the RSA's opening screen and then the subscription option at the bottom of the next page. The RSA is one of twelve learned societies participating in the ACLS's Humanities E-Book project (see <http://www.humanitiesebook.org/societies.html>). The official announcement follows below.

The American Council of Learned Societies announces that ACLS Humanities E-Book (HEB) will soon be hosting an electronic version of the complete Catalogus Translationum et Commentariorum, edited by Paul Oskar Kristeller, F. Edward Cranz, and Virginia Brown and published by the Catholic University of America Press. Volumes will be full-text and reproduced exactly as published. Vols. 1-6 will be available some time in the spring or summer of 2008. Vols. 7 and 8 will be issued in electronic form thereafter. The entire collection will be cross-searchable and accessed either through general searches of HEB or as a discrete series. This will allow scholars to use the CTC either as a tool in itself or within the context of broader searches of HEB's collection. The electronic edition will also afford the scholarly community the ongoing opportunity to suggest corrigenda and addenda. The CTC will be included at no extra charge to faculty, students or library patrons of HEB subscribing institutions and to RSA members who have purchased access to the entire HEB collection for the regular $30 annual fee.

Call for Chairs

Every year the RSA creates panels out of the many isolated papers that have been accepted for the annual conference. These panels prove to be some of the most interesting and stimulating of the meeting. We need, however, to find chairs for them. If you wish to attend the conference and need an official role and listing in the program in order to receive funding from your institution, send the RSA office (rsa@rsa.org) your professional status and your area of specialization. The program will be continually updated on the website: www.rsa.org and if you search the program for Chair: TBA, you will find the chair-less panels.

Papers Mailed to Chairs

To all those presenting at the RSA annual conference: please email a copy of your c.v. and paper by March 10th, 2008 to the chair of your panel. Email addresses can be found in the RSA directory at www.rsa.org. Many thanks for your cooperation.
